Western Construction Group Announces Strategic Alliance with New York-based Restoration Firm Stuart Dean

(St. Louis, MO, Aug. 12, 2014) In an effort to better serve its customers, Western Construction Group has formed a strategic alliance with New York-based interior and exterior architectural restoration experts, Stuart Dean (www.stuartdean.com).

Western has been a leader in the restoration construction industry for nearly 100 years with expertise in masonry, concrete, specialty roofing and facade work. Founded in 1932, Stuart Dean brings more than 80 years of expertise in specialized metal, stone, wood and glass refinishing and preservation.

Western Construction Group's President Jeff Kelley said, "I am excited about the opportunity to partner with Stuart Dean. We share common customers as well as the same values, including doing quality work safely at a competitive price. We look forward to the successful future of our alliance with Stuart Dean and the wealth of opportunities and relationships that it will bring to both companies."

Executive teams from both companies believe this alliance will benefit customers by providing a comprehensive, cost-effective solution to their most common restoration and preservation issues.

"This alliance enables Stuart Dean and Western to execute leveraging our collective knowledge and experience, delivering unprecedented value by assembling just the right team for every engagement," added Mark Parrish, president and CEO of Stuart Dean. "We are pleased to join forces with Western Construction Group, and look forward to what we'll together deliver to our customers."

Business development teams and executive members from Western and Stuart Dean are scheduling seminar presentations around the United States for customers, engineers, consulting groups and building owners to announce the new alliance and discuss its benefits, services and strategies. Targeted areas of focus are: New York, Atlanta, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Houston and Dallas.
